Introducing Caminando...

This issue of our E-News is a little late because we have been hard at work preparing something new—a video that gives you an overview of what Caminando is all about. Please take a look and send us your questions or comments.

Coffee News

Greetings from Branson Hunter, Caminando Por La Paz's coffee manager:

Thank you to all who have been making coffee purchases as a donation to help support Caminando por la Paz.

I encourage all supporters to continue ordering coffee, as this is one of the legs that keeps Caminando's house in Guatemala City functioning. The organization's support structure fits nicely into the three-legged stool concept. Caminando depends on donations through our student sponsorship program, on direct donations to the organization, and on the sale of coffee. Those are the three legs that keep the Guatemala house in operation.

We have a large inventory of green coffee beans in storage at the coffee roaster in the Houston Texas area. We have temporarily reduced the price per pound and are not charging for shipping, to generate income for Caminando. Not charging postage means less funds for Caminando's support, but it helps sales.

As always, thank you for your support, and again I encourage you to continue buying coffee. Think of the free shipping as a gift to thank you for helping Caminando.

SPONSORS

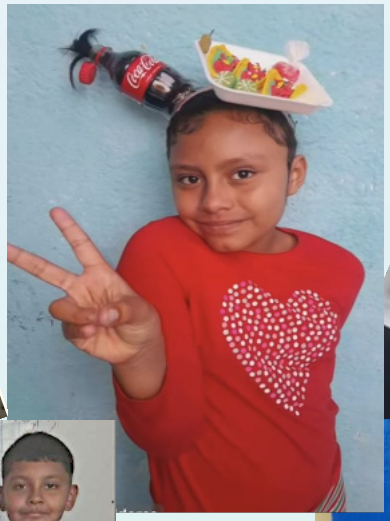

The school year in Guatemala will be ending in November. We pray that all our sponsored students are having a successful year and will be ready when the new school year begins in February.

Sponsors, To send your student a note of encouragement or a birthday greeting, just enter the child's name in the Subject line and email your message to: becados26@gmail.com

When Karla sends me the list of students who are looking for sponsors next February, I will reach out through the newsletter for your support.

Guatemala's Independence Day

September 15

Our students learn to treasure our democratic government.

We love to celebrate Birthdays ~

Especially Ron Covey's

Youth Activities

Our "Youth Without Borders" group enjoys a wide range of activities, including projects undertaken for the Nativity of Mary Church.

Our Monsignor conducted the commissioning of "Youth Without Borders" during their visit to the Church of the Nativity of Mary.

Always Improving our students' Environment

We refinished the students' study table.

Our students' baño gets a complete makeover.

New steps and a planter make our entry match our warm welcome to tutoring students.
